

Book Signing Tips

Here are some tips and suggestions to make the most of book signing experience:

- Wear comfortable shoes and dress in layers. It's a long day on your feet and you will be standing in lines to see your favorite authors so being comfy is key. We also recommend dressing in layers because the ballroom may run hot/cold and we want you to be comfortable.
- Stay hydrated and bring snacks. Pack a water bottle in your bag. We will also have water stations at the venue. Keep a few snacks in your bag to get you through your day.
- Books can get heavy, and if you plan to bring and buy, be prepared. A small rolling carry-on sized suitcase can help you with the weight of books and keep your arms free to converse with the authors.
- Don't forget your camera. The authors will have an assistant to help take pictures for you. Make sure to tag them when you get home!
- Pre-order your books if you can. Many of the authors will offer pre-orders come spring to ensure they have enough books on hand at the signing. Be on the lookout in the group once we start posting links to pre-orders.
- Don't forget to bring cash! Many of the authors accept credit cards for their books and swag, but some don't. Ones, fives, and tens are great for change.
- We will post a map of the author's seating arrangement as we get closer to the date. Make sure to check it out beforehand so you map out your plan of attack. Please also note the authors who will have ticketed lines. Go to as many authors as you can even if you haven't read them before. You may find a new author to fangirl over and a new book boyfriend to add to your collection. 😊
- Have patience when lines are long. The authors are there for you and will make time to see everyone.
